Subject: State of the art studios move into Leek

The work on Overton Bank House in Leek has been obvious to all that have been past in the last 6 months, well the work is finally over and Leek has it's first state of the art recording studio.

S2Blue, a recording studio specialising in jingles for TV and radio, Commercial Production, "on hold" messaging and any kind of corporate audio related work, have become a permanent resident in Leek. S2Blue work with some of the best voice overs, singers and composers in the country – creating commercials, jingles, on-hold messages

At the end of 2001, S2Blue merged with Steve England Studios – Steve has over 25 years experience in the radio industry, working as a DJ on Radio Caroline and Piccadilly Radio in Manchester in the 1970's and running a large recording studio company in South Manchester for 18 years. He has produced loads of national and local TV and radio commercials – working with the BBC, Fiat and most of the radio stations in the UK.

Overton Bank House, has been totally redeveloped in the last 6 months. The Georgian property, which had been converted into a shop but had been lived in as a house in the recent past, has been restored to its former glory – with some help from grants from local government. The shop front has been replaced with a more traditional Georgian look, the windows have all been replaced with a modern interpretation of the traditional sash design.
